Residents fear septage lagoon disaster

by ANDY LLOYD
Times staff

Some Kushog Lake residents are fuming over council's plan to open a septage lagoon at the Pine Springs Landfill site.

Thirteen members of the Kushog Lake Association met with council members on May 16 for what was supposed to be an information sharing session.

But tempers flared as some concerned residents asked pointed questions about the safety of the project, clearly still hoping to dissuade council from opening the lagoon.

Both year-round residents and cottagers on the lake have concerns over the environmental impact the lagoon will have.

CAO Gerald Bain began the meeting by setting out some ground rules.

"At this point we're not debating the location. We met with the Ministry of Environment, the concept was received favourably and Thomas [Grace] was instructed to proceed with the process," Bain said.

Algonquin Highlands is pursuing the $107,000 septage lagoon system in anticipation of new regulations that will ban the spreading of untreated septage within five years. Sewage from across the municipality will be treated at the Pine Springs site.

The municipality hired Thomas Grace, a consultant, to oversee the site's development. He updated Kushog Lake

Boys far behind girls in Gr. 10 literacy test

by SHERYL LOUCKS
Times staff

Boys at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School are lagging dramatically behind girls in Grade 10 standardized test scores but new staff being hired to help students at risk of not getting a diploma may help even the score.

The recently released test results from the October 2002 Grade 10 Literacy Test show that at HHSS only 47 per cent of boys writing the test for the first time passed both the reading and writing portion as compared to 78 per cent of girls. The provincial and Trillium Lakelands District School Board average for boys passing was 63 per cent.

It is one of many bits of interesting information being uncovered by standardized tests and not all of it is bad news. In the applied stream, the local board's percentage of successful students was 10 per cent higher than the provincial average.

Rick Johnson, TLDSB board chair, says what Literacy Test clearly identifies the students who are having problems and what their areas of difficulty are. Naturally the next step, he says, is to give them help in those areas.

The Ministry of Education has responded by providing money for "at risk" programs. During a recent board meeting Johnson says the board passed a couple of initiatives for how to use that Pastor Ashley Taylor of Minden Bible Church is already being referred to as "The Bald Preacher" by his fellow members of the Minden Hills Volunteer Fire Department. Taylor is one of the members of the fire department who will have his head shaved on Canada Day as part of a fund-raiser for Camp BUCKO. He says he looks forward to the fact that some of the firefighters plan to attend his service on July 6 to hear the bald preacher. Will his sermon have anything to do with the advantages of being bald, or will he mention the often repeated statement (by bald people) that bald is beautiful? You'll just have to attend the service to find out.

Pursuit ends in accident

A driver who failed to pull over for a police stop on Hwy. 35 ended up crashing into a rock cut and being seriously injured on Friday afternoon.

The 53-year-old male was transported to Minden Hospital with head injuries. His condition was not known at The Times' press time on Friday.

Police say that on Friday afternoon, an officer on routine patrol on Hwy. 118 several kilometres west of Carnarvon activated his sirens and lights and attempted to stop a black Suzuki Swift that was eastbound on Hwy. 118.

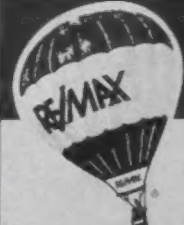

The driver of the vehicle refused to stop and continued eastbound. During this time, police say, the fleeing vehicle made no attempt to pull over to the side of the highway for the officer. The officer continued to follow the vehicle, which turned north onto Hwy. 35.

The officer, while rounding a corner near Shangri La Road, observed the fleeing suspect vehicle stopped in the southbound lane of Hwy. 35.

Witnesses at the scene said the highway was littered with debris when the northbound vehicle crossed the southbound lane and struck a rock cut and crossed the highway.

Police closed the highway for several hours as long weekend traffic headed north.

Because of the police pursuit, the Special Investigation Unit (SIU) was on site investigating.

NFB's 'A Country Doctor' opens to rave reviews

by JERRY GROZELLE
Times staff

The National Film Board production, "A Country Doctor", captured the essence of the life of a doctor in a small rural community. Director Allistair Brown and his crew spent a year working on the documentary, following Doctor Elena Mihiu as she looked after the medical needs of a growing list of patients from Kinmount and the surrounding area.

The film made its public debut with two showings at Highlands Cinema on Wednesday, May 14. The sold-out premier earned rave reviews.

"It was fantastic," said Ted Wilkes, chair of the Kinmount District Health Services Foundation. Wilkes admitted he really didn't know what to expect from this project, but he was pleasantly surprised. "It far exceeded my expectations. It had emotional highs and lows."

Brown was able to portray an accurate account of the daily interaction between Dr. Mihiu and the people of the community in which she has chosen to work. It is obvious that she has adopted the community as her own and, likewise, the community has embraced her.

At times, the film was an emotional roller coaster. It had the audience laughing with an 80-year-old patient of Dr. Mihiu's who kibitzed with his wife about his driving habits. And there was hardly a dry eye in the audience as she worked with a father who lost his will to keep up his own medication after the death of his 18-year-old son in an unexplained car accident. It followed a cancer patient and the emotional trauma of the family, as well as the physician, when the patient lost her battle with the disease.

The film swung from emotional lows to highs as it followed the progress of a young expectant mother and her husband from the ultrasound images of the fetus to delivery and the early development of their son.

It also focused on the community and the advantages of living among a closely knit family of residents.

"Family doctors may not have as glamorous an image as some of the specialty practices," Wilkes said, "but it is very rewarding. A lot of people in this area have a better life because of Dr. Mihiu."

Max Radiff is a member of the Kinmount District Health Services Foundation. He was very impressed with the film. "It was awesome," he said. "It had everything... humour, pathos..."

The foundation is actively trying to recruit another doctor to help lighten the workload for Dr. Mihiu.

"This film gave our recruitment a shot in the arm," Radiff said, adding that it will provide "big time publicity" and he expects "big time results."

Both Wilkes and Radiff agree that Minden and Haliburton will also realize some benefit from the film. If the interest in family practice in small communities that the film is expected to generate actually occurs, the doctor shortage may be addressed.

Brown said he has had the idea of making a documentary about a family doctor for many years. Since he has a cottage in the Kinmount area, and the local clinic had a new doctor, the timing was right for him to go ahead with the project. "It was coincidence that I found this situation because I'd spent about 10 years looking," he said.

Although he learned of the arrival of Dr. Mihiu soon after she came to Kinmount, it took about a year to make arrangements and get some funding for the project.

"A lot of the knowledge and training [in the case of Dr. Mihiu] is spent on caring for you, rather than your symptoms," Brown said. "There is a difference and I think it's vanishing, not just here, but it's vanishing in England, in France, in Australia. It somehow seems society can't afford that sort of person."

He said the medical profession in general seems to have become more reliant on advanced equipment and less on the personal interaction between doctor and patient. In Dr. Mihiu's case, Brown said her type of medicine is preventative. "She looks after all of you. She forces you to care for yourself. You need someone to care for your body, like my accountant cares for my money," he said. "That's what family doctors do and I hope that comes across and how valuable it is."

Brown said it was a privilege to be able to film people in frank discussion with their doctor. He said it was the trust they have formed with Dr. Mihiu and her reassurances that the footage would be presented in a positive light that convinced them to co-operate with the project. "I've become very fond of these people, not just the doctor," Brown said.

Brown purposely steered away from the medical aspect.

"It's not just the mechanics, it's really a moral thing," he said. "I think the film is really not about medicine, it's about the moral act of a knowledgeable person with sympathy. I filmed 200 hours, so I could have done it much more about medicine, but what I wanted was to do it about empathy, which doesn't seem to have much value."

He said empathy is lacking in the health care system in the U.S., as compared to Canada. "I want them [the viewers] to care about Kinmount, I want them to care about Terry [the man dealing with the death of his son]... and I think Canada does."

Dr. Mihiu was thrilled with the film. "It was wonderful," she said. "It is hard to be objective when it is about your own community but I really think Allistair captured the essence of the family practice in a small community; the closeness to the patients; the strength of the relationships. He did a great job."

Since the film centered on Kinmount and its residents, Dr. Mihiu wondered how it would be viewed by people who have no connection to the area or didn't know any of the people in the film. That question was answered by Dr. Gutkin, president of the College of Family Physicians of Canada. "He was given a copy of the video and after watching it, he was so touched, he came to Kinmount for the premiere," Dr. Mihiu said. She added that the film will be shown at the Family Physicians' convention in Calgary this fall. She has been invited to the event.

The film was not produced as a recruitment tool, but Dr. Mihiu said it couldn't have been released at a better time. "We're very excited," she said. "Everybody needs a shot in the arm now and then."

Board of education to spend more money on science labs, computers

At Tuesday night's Committee-of-the-Whole meeting, Trillium Lakelands District School Board Trustees approved several additional upgrades, slated to take place during the 2003-04 school year. The expenditures, totaling $650,000, were made possible by additional Ministry of Education funding announced in December 2002.

Changes to the Secondary School Curriculum often mean that classrooms and facilities must be upgraded in accordance. This is especially true of secondary school labs, which can quickly become outdated. A commitment to upgrading these facilities, as well as making necessary investments to track and fields, has resulted in an allocation of $200,000 in the 2003-04 school year.

"The state of our buildings and fields is a reflection of our commitment to the community," said Rick Johnson, Chair. "Our schools may be aging but we can prolong their usefulness if we invest wisely."

Johnson is also proud of the investments that trustees have chosen to make regarding computers and hardware. In recognition of changing technology, and in order to provide students, staff, and administration with efficient tools, trustees have allocated $50,000 to upgrade school administration hardware. In order to provide students with the most current instructional tools, an additional $400,000 has been allocated to replace school computers.

"They're not only necessary expenditures, they're wise investments" explained Johnson, noting that the upgrades were crucial in order to keep up with changing technology. "The world of technology is rapidly changing and our classrooms and instructional tools have to keep pace."

Funding will help at-risk students

money. The first is that money allocated for a principal be used to hire a coordinator for new programs to help struggling students and provide secretarial support.

The second is that the ministry also recognized the board had been legitimately spending an additional $5 million on special education by using money from other parts of the budget. Following a report by Dr. Mordechai Rozanski which recommended more money for special education and rural schools, the ministry increased TLDSB funding to cover the $5 million shortfall in special education.

Johnson said this freed up about $4 million. The board decided to use that money to hire 7.5 special education staff. Each high school will get one special education teacher devoted to helping students at risk of failing. Records will be reviewed to try and catch at-risk students in Grade 9 before they first write the Literacy Test, do remedial work, review and help with the implementation this fall of the new Grade 12 Literacy Course, an alternative credit students can get instead of having to pass the literacy test.

"We've been fighting to address at-risk students. As a board we have the responsibility to see 100 per cent of our students graduate and to not just have a slip of paper like the alternative 'diploma lite' idea being tossed around a while ago but to really know what they're doing," says Johnson.

Dale Robinson, TLDSB superintendent, thinks the new literacy course and at-risk initiatives will be of particular use to Haliburton students who are not prone to dropping out.

"We don't have a high drop out rate in Haliburton. There aren't a whole lot of alternatives for the kids there - the high school is the hub of social life in Haliburton," Robinson said.

However he did add that they will be watching carefully to see what drop out numbers are like when students do not successfully write the literacy test. Last year, he says, the majority of students eligible to rewrite the Grade 10 test did.

Robinson says the real challenge is figuring out how to reach those kids who are not engaged in learning. He believes the board's new initiatives will put more attention on those kids and their needs.

County OP meeting attracts two members of the public

by SHERYL LOUCKS
Times staff

The latest public meeting to discuss the draft Haliburton County Official Plan was so poorly attended the meeting was over in about 20 minutes.

There were 11 people there aside from those who sit on the OP committee. Of those only two were not staff or consultants.

Redge Holloway came to ask about provisions in the OP in relation to asphalt plants. He asked if permanent asphalt plants would be dealt with in the local municipal official plans and was told yes they would. He also asked if council could consider revising a policy regarding portable asphalt plants to include a reference to provincial policy on the issue.

Gary Davidson, planning consultant agreed they would look into it.

Heather Ross of Environment Haliburton was the only other person to make comments. Ross says EH has reviewed the OP and she made a written submission as well as brief oral summary of the volunteer group's comments.

"We're really pleased to see the environmental integrity of this plan. It warms our hearts to see the environment have such a dominant place," says Ross.

However, she did say the OP seemed to place a higher priority on transportation needs and advised council to consider a ranked list of priorities such as those drafted by Highlands East in its plan.

Ross stressed the need for planning consistency among the four municipalities. She also said that the direction and guidance to achieve consistency should come from the county. The example she gave pertained to water quality studies where municipal plans requirements range from 10 to six studies.

The recommendation from EH is for the county to set the criteria for study requirements and provide guidance on appropriate methodology. This would help to reduce the chances of municipalities being challenged at the Ontario Municipal Board.

Finally, Ross stressed the need for a level of community involvement to be written into the plan. Gary King, Haliburton County chief administrative officer, said he did not feel the official plan was the appropriate place for written guidelines. The county will be updating its strategic plan and he said that will be the place for the community's planning concerns to be addressed.

King added that money has been approved in the county budget for the strategic planning process.

High school teachers get three per cent raise

by SHERYL LOUCKS
Times staff

A late night marathon concluded negotiations between the Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation district 15 and the Trillium Lakelands District School Board.

Negotiations began before Christmas and after a board-wide work to rule campaign in March, the two parties started spending long hours at the table in April. The deal agreed upon includes a raise for high school teachers.

OSSTF's Jim Johnson says the agreement is reasonable given provincial funding restrictions. He added, however, that the union did not gain much ground at the end of the day.

The new agreement covers approximately 430 secondary school teachers at the board's seven high schools and six continuing education centres.

The agreement actually covers the period of 2001-2004 and includes a retroactive raise for the maximum teacher salary of three per cent, bringing that figure up to $72,770.

The raises continue for this salary range with a 2.8 per cent increase on September 1 and a 0.4 per cent increase on February 1, 2004.

The end of this contract will see the salary raise to $75,551.

Other concessions include "major" restorative dental coverage to the group benefits program but the exact amount of coverage was not released. Entry level salaries were also increased to assist with recruitment of new teachers.

Rick Johnson, TLDSB board chair, says all of the money the ministry provides for salaries was passed along to the teachers. He was also pleased the board negotiated a two-year agreement. He says next year they should be able to negotiate a three-year contract as legislated by the ministry and should have multi-year funding at the board so they will know how much money they have to bargain with.

The chairman said the contract is a balance between raises for beginning teachers and long-time teachers. The board, he says, has no problem attracting teachers who are near the end of their careers and want to spend their last few years teaching in cottage country.

"A principal told me he gets five to 10 calls a week from cottagers who want to teach here. In our board we get a lot of teachers from Toronto, Peel and Durham who want to spend their last five years (teaching) up here," says Rick.

He added that it is a bit more difficult attracting young teachers but they are desirable because they have fresh ideas.

The board got rid of the first step of the salary grid for elementary teachers as part of a recruitment initiative and has now done the same for secondary teachers.

Visiting extended as SARS restrictions lessen

New directives have been developed by the Ministry of Health to assist facilities and health care practitioners to begin to practice the "new normal" of care. The directives transitional in nature and will be implemented over time.

HHHS is no longer required to screen outpatients, staff or visitors for SARS. Screening will continue to be performed on all emergency department patients and for patients who are direct admissions. Anyone who presents in the emergency department with respiratory symptoms will be asked to apply a mask and placed in a single room.

Visiting restrictions have been lifted. All visitors, outpatients, volunteers and service and delivery personnel will continue to enter through the main entrance at both facilities. The Emergency Department entrance is to be used only by persons requiring Emergency Department services. Staff entrances have been reopened. Signage has been placed at the entrances outlining exclusion criteria. Anyone who is feeling unwell is asked not to enter.

"The new normal of care will be characterized by high standards of practice that reflect a heightened awareness of emerging infectious diseases," says CEO Keith Sansford. "Goals of practice are the prevention of exposure, early detection and appropriate management and protection of others in the community and the health care setting".

All practitioners and healthcare workers will receive ongoing communication from the Ontario government as new information on the identification and treatment of SARS and other communicable diseases become available.

Summer school for Grades 7 and 8 will be offered if enough students enroll

Trillium Lakelands District School Board will be offering a summer school program to all grade 7 and 8 students who will be entering Grades 8 and 9 respectively this fall.

The non-credit program will provide additional assistance in the areas of mathematics and English, better preparing some TLDSB students for the coming year.

Although the program is available to all Grade 7 and 8 students, it is intended for those who are more likely to have difficulty with the Grade 8 and 9 Math and English curriculum.

"Programs will be based on the recommendations of grade seven and eight teachers," explained Ward Levine who, as principal of adult and continuing education, is also responsible for summer school programming. "The lessons will be designed to meet the needs of the students who register."

Once students return their registration forms, current teachers will be asked to provide individual assessments, helping summer school teachers understand specific problem areas and allowing them to prepare accordingly. The goal of the program, which is strictly voluntary, is to enable students to meet the expectations of their next grade level.

Students and parents alike are reminded that successful completion of the program does not alter this year's report card. "This year's grades will stand," said Levine, "but students can make sure they're better prepared for the year ahead."

The program will be offered in Bracebridge, Fenelon Falls, Gravenhurst, Haliburton, Huntsville, and Lindsay, dependent upon sufficient enrollment (minimum 15 students).

There is no registration fee or tuition costs associated with the program, although parents must provide or arrange for transportation to the site as busses do not run in the summer. A transportation subsidy of $40. will be paid to parents, subject to certain attendance requirements.

Classes will run Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. during the period of Wednesday July 2 to Friday July 18th. Students must register through their home school by June 11, 2003.

Information will be distributed to all Grade 7 and 8 students through their home schools. Parents wanting more information are encouraged to contact their child's principal.

Education bursary winners

Minden nurses Carol Holmes and Dale Smith received a $1,000 bursary from the Haliburton Highlands Health Services Foundation to be shared with Haliburton's Rachel Fearrey (absent) for furthering their nursing qualifications. The three will continue working at both HHHS sites while attending a two-year Registered Nurse course at George Brown College through Ross Memorial Hospital in Lindsay.

High school summer school focuses on English, math

Trillium Lakelands District School Board will again offer a variety of summer programs to meet the needs of secondary school students. In addition to new credit programs offered for students in Grades 11 and 12 a remedial course in English and mathematics will be available for students in Grades 9 and 10 wishing to upgrade their marks and skills over the summer.

The Literacy and Numeracy Program:

This program will be offered Monday to Friday, July 7th to July 18th, 8:15 a.m. until 1:15 p.m. There is no cost to enroll and parents need only to arrange transportation. The program is geared toward students who need additional support in their current stream or who are crossing from applied to academic course study. The English component of this program is particularly useful for students who may have difficulty with the Grade 10 Literacy Test. Further details regarding cross-over transfer, and remedial courses are available from the guidance office of the home school.

Students in Grades 9 and 10 will be notified of their need to take a remedial course prior to the end of the school year. Registration for these courses will take place at the Haliburton Community Learning Centre (in Victoria Street School): June 26 and 27 - 8:30 a.m. - 11:30 a.m.; July 1 - 8:30 a.m. - 11:30 a.m.

Credit courses:

In addition to preparing students for the challenges ahead, Trillium Lakelands offers the opportunity to get ahead by taking a new credit (100 hours of classes.)

Muskoka and Haliburton areas:

Subject to enrollment, the following courses are planned for students in Grades 11 and 12 in Bracebridge, Gravenhurst, Haliburton, and Huntsville:

- ELS 30 - English Language Skills Development
- Co-operative education (1 credit, tied into a Semester 1 or 2 course)

Remedial / Upgrade Courses Grades 9 and 10:

Classes will run Monday to Friday, July 7, 2003 through July 18, 2003. Instruction will take place 8:15 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. for a total of 50 hours

Full Credit Classes Grades 11 and 12:

Classes will begin on July 2, 2003 and run until July 29, 2003. Instruction will take place 8:15 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. for a total of 100 hours.

For more information on Trillium Lakelands DSB Summer School offerings, parents are encouraged to contact their home-school principal or the Lindsay Adult Education & Training Centre at 705-324-5280.

If cremation is your choice, funeral pre-planning will help your family.

Pre-planning means recording your funeral service preferences before the time of need. Then, your family will have guidelines to follow. They won't have to worry about what to select or how much to spend.

Pre-planning is just as helpful to your family if you choose cremation. Because then you can record if you also want a visitation, memorial, or funeral service.

We invite you to visit our funeral home for more information about pre-planning and cremation. We'll help you with all the details.

Algonquin Highlands considers mandatory recycling suggestion

by ANDY LLOYD
Times staff

The following are brief reports of items discussed at the May 15 meeting of Algonquin Highlands council.

The waste management committee is considering some interesting proposals for recycling in the municipality. The committee is looking into the idea of purchasing blue boxes that would be sold to local businesses and residents to encourage recycling.

Reeve Eleanor Harrison made it clear that in her opinion, the blue boxes should not be subsidized with taxpayers' money, but rather sold at a reasonable cost to people who would like to use one.

The waste management committee is also looking in to the idea of mandatory recycling and the use of clear garbage bags. Council will examine the mandatory recycling system currently used by Highlands East to see how it might be applied to Algonquin Highlands. There are several issues that need to be addressed including how such a bylaw would be enforced.

Red Pine Lake development

Council gave its blessing to Larry Hewitt, a landowner on Red Pine Lake who plans to carve out six lakeshore lots from his existing property to be developed as seasonal residential properties. The property itself falls within Dysart et al but because most of the lake is in Algonquin Highlands, Hewitt wanted to clear his plans with council before he approaches Dysart et al. Algonquin Highlands supports his development, as long as he meets Dysart et al's criteria for development.

Commercial business on residential property?

Bill Kennedy sent a letter to council alleging that an Oxtongue Lake woman is running a commercial business on her residentially zoned property.

The woman runs a website advertising her cottage to would-be renters, appealing to larger gatherings such as wedding receptions and even corporate events.

This is the second time council has received complaints about the property. After the first complaint, which was pre-amalgamation, a township planner determined the property was not being used for commercial purposes. Council was reluctant to change its mind on the issue this time around.

Reeve Eleanor Harrison said many people rent out their homes or cottages, some for months at a time. And council agreed it could be dangerous to label certain rental properties as commercial. At the time of the first complaint the owner of the property claimed she was renting her property just like any other property owner.

"People rent out their cottages," Councillor Tom Gardiner said. "This person has just gone a little further by creating a website."

Council agreed to revisit the file on this Oxtongue Lake property, and it may seek a legal opinion if the issue is not resolved to the satisfaction of local residents.

Dorset museum

Council accepted a quote from Always Roofing to repair the flat roof on the mines building in Dorset. The contract, worth just under $20,000, guaranteed labour for five years and roofing materials for 15 years. The money to re-do the building's roof will come from a reserve fund for museum operating costs.

Fire calls

Fire Chief John Hogg presented the Stanhope Fire Department's monthly report to council. The department responded to 10 calls, six of which were brush and grass fires, two were serious vehicle accidents.

Senior's housing plan a go

Council granted $5,000 to the development committee for a senior's housing project in Dorset. When the Dorset school closed the municipality was able to buy the building. The committee spent the past year determining how the community would like to see the building used. The consensus was that it should be converted into a senior's residence. The committee will use the $5,000 as seed money to develop a business plan for the housing project.

911 road name dispute resolved

The dispute over a new name for Algonquin Outfitters Road has been solved. The road was initially slated to become Outfitters Road under the 911 road naming project, but local business owner expressed concern that the name change would have negative impact on his business.

When two road names conflicted under 911, the one with the most addressable structures got to keep its original name. After a recount, 911 program official Stephen Foster discovered that Algonquin Outfitters Road has 17 such structures, more than previously thought. The conflicting road in Dysart et al has only 15 structures.

Council received more letters from residents on private roads who are also upset with road name changes. It asked Foster to look into these cases to see if all the proper naming procedures were followed.

Videos get a shot at $17,000 in federal funding

by ERIN TENNANT
Times staff

Two video projects intended to promote Haliburton County have received a welcomed financial boost, with the Ministry of Human Resources Development Canada delivering $17,245 in funds last week.

The provincial funding, announced on Tuesday, is to assist a joint initiative between the Haliburton County Community Co-operative and the Heritage Video Project Committee.

The co-op and local resident group have been raising money for production work on a ten-minute promotional video as well as planning for a 30-minute film on the county's heritage.

"We've never had a promotional video about the county, so this is something that's been long overdue," said the cameraman for both projects, George Farrell of Minden.

Co-op director Carolyn Coburn said the promotional video, which will feature various locations and events around the county over four seasons, will be made available for public interest. However, its primary purpose is as a fund-raising pitch for the larger project of producing a video on Haliburton's heritage, which would involve interviews with locals about the past and with people who have made significant contributions to the county.

"The hope is that this heritage video will be for general education, particularly for school children so that they can learn about their local history," said Coburn.

The HRDC money will fund the bulk of the $40,000 promotional video project, which requires a new digital camera, tripod and other filming equipment. "We anticipate that this equipment will be available for other community initiatives as well," added Coburn.

The Co-op have secured other funding contributions from the Chamber of Commerce and the Haliburton Community Co-operative.

A rough cut of the promotional video will be completed by spring of next year. The heritage video project is still seeking more funds.

The heart of a doctor's life

How many small communities can boast a National Film Board documentary based on life in their neighbourhood? Kinmount has that distinction with the release of the NFB film A Country Doctor.

This film is a must see for anybody who has even a passing interest in the life of a small-town doctor, or rural life in general.

Sitting in Theatre number four of Highlands Cinema in Kinmount while the 71-minute production unfolded on the screen, viewers were led through a roller-coaster ride of emotions. At times, most of the audience members could feel the tears welling up in their eyes and at other times, we broke into spontaneous laughter. The film was thought-provoking in its candid portrayal of the community's family doctor.

The expression family doctor is especially appropriate because the film's director, Allistair Brown, managed to capture explicitly how Dr. Elena Mihi has become more than just the community's general practitioner. She has, in a couple of years, become a member of Kinmount's "family."

Brown and his film crew spent a year documenting the life of the family doctor, some of her patients, and their interaction.

Dr. Elena Mihi came to the Kinmount Community Medical Centre as if by some Divine direction. She answered an ad for a doctor and she and her husband made the commitment to move to the area. The community was elated and soon Dr. Mihi had more patients than she could handle. A waiting list has been established and the community is actively searching for another doctor to help lighten her workload.

The release of A Country Doctor couldn't have come at a better time. And Brown's vision of how the film should unfold, who was included and how they were portrayed, captured perfectly the community spirit and how Dr. Mihi has become a member of Kinmount's extended family.

As the Kinmount District Health Services Foundation continues its search for another doctor, this film will, if it reaches a provincial audience or beyond, is sure to assist the cause. It wasn't intended as a recruitment tool, but, as they say in comedy, timing is everything.

Video copies of the film have already been distributed to more than 40 people and organizations, as well as television networks. Interest by network executives has been positive. If the initial response is any indication, we could soon see A Country Doctor on one or more of the television networks available locally.

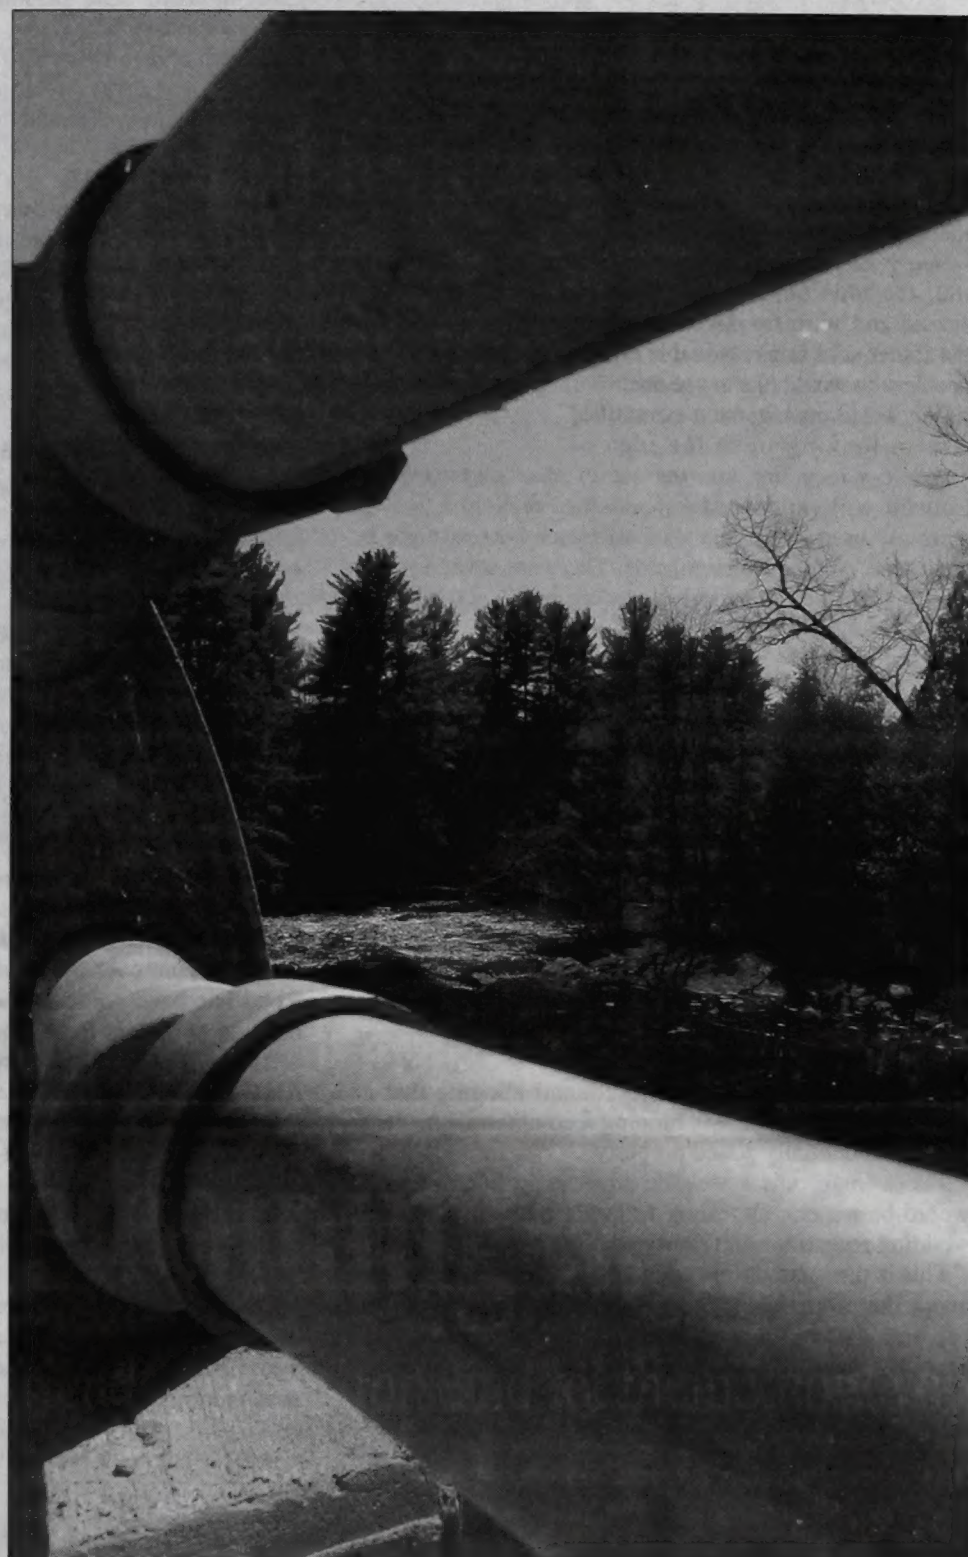

Since Kinmount is in the market for one doctor, there is a possibility that some interest in the surrounding area may be generated and Haliburton County's doctor search may get a boost as well.

Family practice in a rural setting isn't the ideal situation for every doctor. There will always be those who prefer the assembly line approach, where patients are allotted a few minutes to explain their symptoms and the doctor prescribes the appropriate treatment, without making any emotional commitment to the patient. It is a matter of personality and not everyone is prepared to make the emotional commitment that is essential in a closely-knit rural community.

For those who do have the right personality, A Family Doctor offers some compelling insight into what a doctor can expect if he or she decides to explore the possibility of becoming a family practitioner.

The phone may not ring off the hook with doctors lining up to join the local medical profession, but we expect this film to generate more interest than we've seen in some time.

Five Counties at critical point

To the Editor:

Five Counties Children's Centre has arrived at a critical juncture in its ability to offer services to children with physical and communication disabilities in the counties of Peterborough, Haliburton, Northumberland and the City of Kawartha Lakes. With increasing numbers of children requiring services, we have insufficient funding to offer basic assessment and treatment, in a timely manner, for which Five Counties Children's Centre was first established through Rotary initiatives 27 years ago.

The provincial government provides funding to the Centre but does not adjust its funding annually. This year the Centre was facing a $250,000 deficit for the financial year 2003-2004. This deficit has been addressed, with deep regret, by the board very reluctantly accepting that this will result in children's services having longer waiting lists for assessment and less intensive therapy following assessment. Service costs have been reduced by eliminating three therapist positions and by some members of management and staff generously taking unpaid leaves. Waiting lists for some treatments exceed eighteen months and the intensity of treatment is less than desirable in many cases. This is difficult for our dedicated professionals and would be improved with more funding.

Jedi Eh?

A growing number of our fellow citizens aspire to the philosophies of Obi Wan Kenobe, Yoda, and Luke Skywalker

It's no secret that Canada is a diverse and wonderful nation filled with a difference of opinions, tolerance and acceptance. That's why we allow politicians to run the country.

But recent statistics have shed some surprising new light on the religious make-up of this great nation. For the most part, things are the same with seven out of 10 Canadians holding Christian beliefs and the remainder aligned with other traditional religions such as Islam, Judaism, Buddhism or Hockey.

This latest census also reports, however, the proliferation of a strange unearthly phenomenon. Yes, 20,000 Jedi Knights now call Canada home. That's right, a growing number of our fellow citizens now aspire to the philosophies of Obi Wan Kenobe, Yoda, and Luke Skywalker of Star Wars fame. If this continues, it won't be uncommon to hear women ask "Is that a light sabre in your pocket or are you just glad to see me?" or "Use the fork Luke. Use the fork."

Is it me or do you also sense a great disturbance in the Force?

Look, I've got nothing against Jedi Knights or even Knights of Columbus for that matter, but we're talking about a religion that is, essentially, based on a PG-13 screenplay.

That's setting a dangerous precedent. Next thing you know you'll walk down the airport and be accosted for donations by the Hari Krishnas followed by the Harry Met Sallyites. And give or not, they'll fake gratitude in a very embarrassing manner. Not that I'd know what that's about. Really.

And how would you even recognize a Jedi anyhow? Would they worship at the planetarium or the video store? Do they buy ginsu knives or do they use light sabers to chop their carrots? Can they raise the toilet seat by sheer meditative powers? All these things need to be confirmed before they are granted religious status or even public washroom privileges.

Don't get me wrong, prior to this I've never been one to voice concerns about another person's spiritual beliefs. But now a couple of questions need to be addressed and fast.

First and foremost, what happens if a few of them turn to the Dark Side? I know, I know, most Jedi are law-abiding and hard working folks — delusional yes, but hard-working and law-abiding to be sure. But, even so, one bad apple is all it takes to spoil the whole bunch. Must I remind you of Darth Vader and the chaos he provoked in Episode 1? Would you want Death Stars and Imperial Storm Troopers supporting Celine Dion's right to bring her Vegas show to Canada? If this proliferation of Jedis continues, the federal government might feel a responsibility to do something — and as we all know, that in itself, is always a highly dangerous proposition. In this case, they might create some sort of costly licensing system and match it with an inefficient registry for the 20,000 or so unregistered light sabers out there. After all, they are concealable, laser-sharp and dangerous weapons or, if you don't have the technology to make a real one, they're pretty fancy coloured flashlights that make buzzing sounds. Either way it's certainly deserving of a billion dollar bureaucracy.

Of course, a billion dollars is no big deal. Revenue Canada will recoup it at tax time. And as long as you pay, the government doesn't care about your choice of religions. In their eyes, we are all equal. In fact, I bet the boys at Revenue Canada get bored with tax forms filled by folks with more conventional beliefs. Yeah, even now I bet they look forward to the Returns of the Jedi.

May the farce be with you.

Come fly with me

O, I have slipped the surly bonds of earth And danced the sky on laughter-silvered wings...

From "High Flight" by John Gillespie Magee Jr.

Tom Cochrane was right: Life is a highway. What he forgot to mention is that it's also a one-way street. I have reached a stage of life in which a few blunt truths have made themselves painfully evident. There are certain things I've always dreamed of doing which, due to advancing decrepitude (mine), are simply Not Going to Happen.

To wit: Pat Quinn is not going to call me up to plug that hole in the Maple Leafs' defensive corps. The only way I'll ever see the summit of Mount Everest is on a National Geographic travelogue. I can stop waiting for a late night phone call from Jennifer Lopez complaining that she's lonely and would I like to go out dancing.

And now I realize that I might as well give up on another long-nurtured dream.

I am never going to get to fly on the Concorde.

The obituaries for the Concorde briefly fluttered across the front pages of the national press late last month.

The delta-winged supersonic luxury airliner is being mothballed after barely a quarter-century of commercial service. The eulogies ranged from the rhapsodic: "Never before has such a beautiful object been designed and built by man", to the less charitable: "the largest, most expensive and most dubious project ever undertaken in the development of civil aircraft."

Beautiful? Well, I suppose so — although from some angles the Concorde looked like an albino praying mantis wearing a Batman cape — but she was unquestionably expensive. Only a handful of Concorde were ever built, but the price tag for development costs alone crested above $5 billion — and that's in 1960's dollars. More like $25 billion in today's currency.

And it's not like the plane ever made back its investment in passenger fares. It could only carry 100 passengers per flight. By the time Concorde's owners pulled the plug, flights were running at 20 per cent capacity. Which is to say four out of every five seats were empty.

Why? Pick your poison — ear-cracking sonic booms; lingering air travel chill from Nine-Eleven; skyrocketing fuel prices; a spectacular crash into a Paris hotel three years ago that killed 109 people on the plane and four people on the ground...

And the relative scarcity of people willing and able to shell out roughly 15,000 loonies for a three-and-a-half hour jaunt from New York to Paris and back.

Election a time to make Centre's needs known

Board hopes cost of living increases will be annualized, and funding tied to needs

We appreciate recent government initiatives with increased dollars going to dedicated programs — autism, infant hearing screening, etc., but we require help in maintaining necessary basic therapies. In 2000 Five Counties Children's Centre received one-time dollars that purchased badly needed equipment, improved space for services and provided a very short term increase in therapy hours. This partly helped in playing "catch-up" in services for only a limited term. However, with only two annualized funding increases in the past 14 years we are 13 percent behind in cost of living alone. Unfunded pay equity responsibilities contribute to our deficit. We are in the unfortunate position of not being on a funding grid similar to that of hospitals and schools that generally qualify for annual cost of living adjustments.

We would like to thank our Foundation's Board of Trustees and the communities served by Five Counties for their tremendous effort and generosity in raising funds that have, until this year kept us out of a deficit position.

The task at hand is to establish Five Counties in a position where cost of living allowance will be annualized and funding will be set at a level where children can be assessed and receive treatment in a timely fashion. The upcoming provincial election will provide all of us with opportunities to make known the needs of Five Counties. Our children and their families work very hard to maximize their potential, and we can help by ensuring assessment and treatment when they need it. "Kids can't wait".

Bernice Standen,
Chairman of the Board
Five Counties Children's Centre

Association members on the status of the project, and fielded questions on environmental issues.

Grace explained that before the site is given Ministry of Environment approval, the municipality must prove the project will not have any adverse environmental impacts. He also detailed the monitoring process that will be in place once the site is up and running to prevent any unexpected environmental damage.

Because the site will service fewer than 1,500 residents, the project does not have to undergo a full environmental assessment. But, representatives from the association are concerned that septage from other municipalities may be brought to Pine Springs. Bain said he does not anticipate that happening.

Grace assured Kushog Lake residents that thousands of sites across North America use similar septage lagoon systems successfully. "We will do soil studies, we will install monitor wells. We're going to look at surface water and ground water," he said. Despite his efforts, those at the meeting did not seem convinced. But Grace was frank when he said if the site does not meet stringent environmental regulations, the MOE will shut it down.

Septage will be dumped into two 45,000 litre tanks where sludge will be separated from the liquid waste. The septage then flows into two lagoons where it continues to break down, and eventually the treated waste is released into 10 open disposal trenches. Area residents fear excess nitrates and phosphorus will be released into the watershed, contaminating multiple lakes. But if the system works properly, the water released from the site should be drinking water quality.

The municipality will begin compiling its environmental report for the Ministry of Environment in early July. Grace hopes the septage lagoon will be up and running by the coming winter, assuming it meets the MOE Certificate of Approval conditions.

Councillor Jim Hicks, chair of the waste management committee, had some advice for residents concerned about odours. Hicks said he visited septage lagoons in Bracebridge and Huntsville and found the odour surprisingly mild. He recommended people visit these sites to smell for themselves. At the future Pine Springs site, raw septage will be dumped into sealed tanks before it reaches the lagoons. This, according to Grace, will greatly reduce odour.

There will be public meetings in the future, as the project progresses through the approval process. Bain promised to keep the public informed on any issues that arise.

Norma Goodger is the president of the Kushog Lake Association. She, and other Association executive members attended the May 16 meeting. "Our first and major concern is for the environment, and the responsibility rests with all of us," Goodger said. Her Association represents people who support both sides of the issue. Goodger is pleased that the municipality agreed to share the results of its environmental report with the Association. She plans to have the report independently reviewed when it comes out.

Fire department calls triple under tiered response program

by SHERYL LOUCKS
Times staff

The number of calls the Minden Hills volunteer fire department has responded to has tripled this year, according to a summary of calls presented to Minden Hills Committee of the Whole.

Councillor Ron Buchanan pointed out to council that the number of calls has increased dramatically since the installation of the tiered emergency response system which means the fire department is called out to medical calls if an ambulance is going to be longer than 10 minutes.

Last year the department responded to 19 calls between January and the end of April but this year during the same period there have been 57. The increase is largely due to a dramatic increase in fires and medical calls.

Deputy Reeve Jim McMahon asked to see a cost report for these calls and was informed it would be delivered in August. He commented that ratepayers are getting hit in a "double whammy" by both the county for ambulance services and by municipalities for fire department response to medical calls.

Reeve Ross Rigney reminded council that they had agreed to commit to this experiment for one year. Buchanan added that new technology means that if an ambulance reaches the scene first they can contact the fire trucks from the ambulance to let them know they are not required.

McMahon countered that as soon as the men are called out the municipality is required to pay them for one hour regardless of how far they get before being called off.

The head of the tiered response system, Miles Maughan, says the system needs a little internal "tweaking" but overall is working well. Maughan, who is also Dysart et al fire chief, says in Dysart he expected a 25 to 30 per cent increase in medical calls but so far has seen a 40 per cent increase with the exception of April when the numbers were lower due to SARS precautions.

Maughan says that in Dysart there is also some questioning of whether or not tiered response is a reasonable cost for the municipality to bear. Representatives from the other two municipalities that are partners in the project, Algonquin Highlands and Highlands East, say they have not seen a real difference in the number of calls because they don't have ambulance bases in their municipalities and are used to seeing a high number of medical calls anyway.

Back at Minden Hills, councillor Peter Oyler said that if the municipal fire department is not legally bound to respond to medical calls then perhaps the issue should become a focus of debate. Buchanan says they may not be legally obligated but the paramedics union requires a paramedic to be safe for them to respond to a call and often it is the firefighters who provide them that safe environment.

Rigney says his concern is actually for the safety of firefighters: medical calls often require lifting and could result in back injuries. He says the municipality has an excellent relationship with employers who allow firefighters to volunteer during work and does not want to jeopardize that relationship by seeing these employees off for months for injuries.

However, Rigney also recommending shelving the debate until the summer report and year end review of the tiered response experiment.

Buchanan raised a second fire department cost issue of waiting for hydro to respond to calls. Recently a wind storm blew down two trees onto wires causing the electricity to arch. The firefighters can not deal with the situation until the electricity to those wires is cut off and the municipality pays for those firefighters to wait.

Buchanan says there is no Hydro liaison for them to contact for emergencies like there is for the Ministry of Natural Resources when it comes to fire or with the Ontario Provincial Police.

Oyler says they should get someone from Ontario Hydro to come to a council meeting to be apprised of their concerns and councilors agreed to try and get Hydro to the table.

Study identifies gaps in healthcare services

by JERRY GROZELLE
Times staff

Dan Clydesdale presented the findings of his U-Links study titled "A Health Needs Assessment of Haliburton County" to the Haliburton Highlands Health Services Board recently.

Clydesdale, a nursing student at Trent University, explained the procedure of the telephone survey which led to his report. He noted that a random sample of people from all four townships were contacted and each was asked a series of questions designed to get a feel for how the county's health services are being utilized, who uses them, people's impressions of how the county is served by the facilities and services that are available, among other things.

"It's the first stage in identifying gaps in the county's health services," Clydesdale told the board.

He admitted that the telephone survey didn't go as smoothly as he had anticipated. It had been designed to take about 10 minutes to complete, but the test subjects were health care professionals who understood the questions better than the average county resident. As a result, there were cases where it took considerably longer to conduct surveys. "I spent a lot of time explaining the questions," he said.

During his survey, Clydesdale made 376 calls, with 56 calls answered. Of those who answered his calls, 39 chose to participate in the survey. The fact that Haliburton has a high percentage of seniors was reinforced by Clydesdale's survey - 46 per cent of the respondents were aged 66 or older, with most of those in the 66-75 age range. A very high percentage of respondents were full-time residents of the county and almost 75 per cent of those have resided here for 11 years or more.

The survey found that 62 per cent of the respondents said they thought emergency services in the county were adequate.

More than half of the participants said funding for health care in the county was insufficient. The three most common areas where the felt more funding was needed were health services, health care professionals and medical equipment. Retaining and attracting physicians was at the top of the list at 33 per cent, followed by new and more medical equipment at 26 per cent and in third at 13 per cent was the need for additional nurses and support staff.

Clydesdale notes that of those surveyed,

Sheryl Loucks/TIMES

HHHS chairman Jack Brezina, right, was at Dan Clydesdale's original presentation. Clydesdale, left, did a survey of people's feelings about local healthcare services.

nearly 75 per cent felt quite strongly that health care services did not have an impact on the number of people who are attracted to live here. "This suggests that the people who are moving to the area are either not considering the health care services available or health care services are not a factor," he surmised.

The fact that 76.9 per cent of the respondents travel outside Haliburton County for some of their health care needs suggests to Clydesdale that access to health care is not equal to urban centres.

The survey found that 28.2 per cent of the respondents did not have a family physician. Clydesdale noted that the survey question did not distinguish between those who have no physician and those who have a physician outside Haliburton County. Some of the respondents (10.3 per cent) who indicated they do not have a physician said they use the hospital emergency departments instead. Another 12.8 per cent said they used the services of the clinic.

Most of the respondents (92 per cent) felt strongly that there is a shortage of physicians and 71.4 per cent felt that this shortage could be detrimental to their family's health. On a negative note, 76.9 per cent said they thought the county's ability to attract physicians to practice here was limited.

On the subject of nurse practitioners, only 59 per cent were aware they existed. Of those who were aware, 78.4 per cent felt the physician shortage could benefit from NPs and 86.4 per cent said they would use the services of a NP if one was available, but only if their family doctor remained involved.

Nearly half (46.2 per cent) of respondents to the survey were not aware of the fact that mental health services are available in the county. Of those who were, the need for additional health care personnel, more services and more housing were identified as priorities.

Clydesdale said the shortage of physicians indicates "a strong risk of physician burnout" among those who are practicing in Haliburton County. In his report, he noted: "Physicians here simply cannot take on any more clients due to the demands from their practice. They are literally pushed to their working capacity."

Clydesdale said his report is the initial stage in identifying gaps in services and identifying the community's needs. He admitted time constraints prevented him from achieving the goal of 100 people surveyed. He said he felt those who did participate gave a good cross section of county residents, with the over-representation of seniors participating possibly skewing the results. The fact that the telephone survey was conducted between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday to Saturday "suggesting that the younger demographic, who represent the labor force, were probably working and therefore not home during the time of the call."

Haliburton Highlands Health Services CAO Keith Sansford said the U-Links report "builds on past projects." He added that assessment of the community's health care needs will continue. "This study provides an indication of areas that require further review," he said.

Morris Duff walks away with award

A Minden man's effort to get local residents walking in the right direction towards a healthier lifestyle has earned him a provincial award.

Morris Duff is the first ever winner in Haliburton County of the Health Is A Community Award. The award was presented to Duff today prior to the start of the Sneaker Day Walk in Minden - An event he was instrumental in launching nine years ago.

"Morris is Mr. Sneaker Day and certainly is very deserving of a Health Is A Community Award," says Anne-Marie Cyr, a Public Health Nurse with the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit.

Health Unit staff and Sneaker Day Walk organizers jointly nominated Duff for the Health Is A Community Award. The nomination was endorsed by the Ontario Public Health Association, which offers the award in partnership with health units across the province. The newly created award recognizes individuals and groups who work with public health agencies to improve the wellness of others in the community.

Duff has indeed contributed to a healthier community by promoting the health benefits of physical activity, says Cyr.

Duff has shared his love for walking in many ways. He has been a long-time champion of the early morning walking program at Archie Stouffer Elementary School in Minden. Duff was also the first chairperson of the Sneaker Day Committee initiated in Minden in 1995. In that role, Duff has taken on many duties, including hosting organizing meetings in his home, publicizing the Sneaker Day event through articles contributed to the local papers, inviting schools to participate, and ensuring the walking trail and facilities were available for Sneaker Day.

"We see the fruits of Morris' labour with the hundreds of participants who take to the trail every year for Minden's Sneaker Day Walk," says Cyr. "It truly is a credit to him."

Minden's Sneaker Day Walk has become the formal kickoff locally to SummerActive - a province-wide initiative that runs from May 9 to June 21. SummerActive promotes the importance of active living, healthy eating and being smoke-free as keys to improving your health. Anyone who takes part in SummerActive programs and events can register their participation online (www.summeractive.canoe.ca) to win prizes.

To find out more about SummerActive, call the local Health Unit office at (705) 457-1391.

HHSS Junior Soccer An HHSS junior defender clears the ball as well as an LCVI player out of the zone. The junior Red Hawks put up a strong fight, but lost 2-nil to the Spartans. In their second game against the Fenelon Falls Falcons also proved to be a test. They lost as well and continue to look for their first win of the season.

Get on track with sun safety

Spectators taking in the competition at an upcoming track and field meet in Haliburton County can also get the scoop on healthy living.

The Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit and the Health For Life project are teaming up to promote sun safety and physical activity at the Haliburton Legion's Annual Elementary School Track and Field event, at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School on Saturday, May 24, from 10 am to 1 pm.

"Cheer on the participants and then stop by to find out how to stay healthy this summer," says Anne-Marie Cyr, a Public Health Nurse with the HKPR District Health Unit.

Staff with the Health Unit and Health For Life will have displays set up providing information on sun safety and the importance of physical activity. People who drop by the displays can enjoy free water, oranges and sun screen and enter their names in a draw for prizes. Free activity books will also be available for children.

The Haliburton track meet also marks the local launch of Canada's Physical Activity Guides For Children and Youth. Cyr calls the timing of the track meet "a perfect fit" to highlight a valuable resource that encourages physical activity.

Health Canada developed the new Physical Activity Guides to highlight the importance of physical activity for healthy growth and development in youth. The guides are designed to be 'child-friendly' so young people will pick them up and use them. Variations of the guide are also available for teachers and parents.

"Studies show rates of childhood obesity are rising, so it's crucial we get young people off the couch and away from the computer so they can become more active," Cyr says.

More information about the Physical Activity Guides is available by calling the local Health Unit.

Eastern Ontario wardens meet with Ottawa MPs

A "Summit" of Eastern Ontario Counties and federal Liberal MPs who represented ridings across Eastern Ontario was held last Wednesday in Ottawa.

In a joint statement released M.P. Paul Macklin, chair of the Eastern Ontario Liberal Caucus, said "The Summit was a real success for both parties. There was an excellent exchange of ideas on issues that both we, as federal MPs and the wardens representing their counties, have in common".

Warden William Hagen, chair of the Eastern Ontario Wardens' Caucus, which includes Haliburton County, was equally pleased. "Today was a historic day for us. This Summit provided us with direct access to the Federal Government and its key decision makers. We took the opportunity to highlight the many findings and recommendations for positive change contained in our study, 'Future Directions'," said Hagen.

The Summit, organized by the federal Liberal caucus for Eastern Ontario reviewed issues including the need for specific attention to economic development initiatives, the pressing requirements for assistance to local infrastructure including roads, telecommunications and relief of the property tax burden on residents and businesses.

"The wardens offered a number of concrete suggestions for the consideration of the Government of Canada, such as the need for direct financial support from Ottawa to our counties. Our analysis indicates that at least $52 million annually is required to put Eastern Ontario on more competitive footing with other areas of the country," said Hagen.

Lyle Vanclief, Minister of Agriculture and Agribusiness, who attended the Summit, noted that, Eastern Ontario is one of only two areas in the country that does not have a specific regional development program for the area. The Wardens' study, 'Future Directions' clearly supports the need for a made in Eastern Ontario initiative."

"When we first received the Wardens' study, it struck an immediate chord with us," added Peter Adams, M.P. for Peterborough, "and it certainly supports the need for special attention that will benefit Eastern Ontario. Today's Summit is a good first step and we look forward to continuing to work directly with the Wardens' Caucus."

"I and my government colleagues felt it was time that we met and discussed issues of mutual interest with members of the Eastern Ontario Wardens' Caucus and that's why we took the initiative to invite them to Ottawa yesterday. Their hard work should be recognized and we committed to continuing to meet together on a regular basis," said Macklin.

"We were extremely happy with yesterday's Summit," added Hagen. "We have to sincerely thank Mr. Macklin and all of the Federal M.P.s who took time out of their busy schedules to join in the exchange ideas that will benefit our mutual constituents across Eastern Ontario. Truly represents a new day in our relationship and we look forward to developing specific actions that will benefit our region."

Officials of both groups will now consult on establishing the date for the next joint meeting along with an agenda.

The Eastern Ontario Wardens' Caucus represents thirteen counties from the County of Haliburton and the City of Kawartha Lakes in the west to Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry in the East and north through the Ottawa Valley including the County of Renfrew.

There are ways to reduce the risk of being vandalized

Vandalism – the wilful damage or defacing of property belonging to another person or the public – is a criminal offence.

Vandalism or mischief may be perpetrated wherever the opportunity exists, often schools after hours, in public parks after dark and on premises that are not occupied. Usually vandals do their mischief when they think that no one will see them.

Young people commit most acts of vandalism. Therefore, a great responsibility rests with parents to set a good example. Parents must realize they must monitor their child's various stages of development, his or her changes in interest, friends, attitudes, etc. Parents must ensure their child does not succumb to the negative pressures, which all too often end in trouble.

Here are some preventative measures homeowners or businesses can take to prevent vandalism:

- Improved lighting.
- Timely reporting of incidents of vandalism, as well as suspicious persons loitering in an area where an act of vandalism may be committed. Do not assume that someone else has already made the call.
- Maintain a "good neighbour" policy; watch out for your neighbour's property as well as your own.
- Parents should be aware of their children's associates and activities.
- Inform your children of the criminal consequences of vandalism and ask that your children observe a curfew in your home.

By forming partnerships with the police and the community, we can all take a proactive approach to crime prevention and safety. In the end, everyone wins.

DON'T TURN A FENDER-BENDER INTO A FATALITY.

Storms, broken branches and traffic accidents can bring down power lines. Lines that look dead can be live and very dangerous. Always keep a safe distance (10 metres, or about one bus length) away from any fallen power line. And if you're in a vehicle near a fallen wire, stay where you are until a hydro crew clears the way.

STAY SAFE. STEER CLEAR.

Looking for a job? Government information centre has ways to help

The Ministry of Consumer and Business Services has unveiled a new on-line life event bundle called: "Looking for a Job". This kit provides a wealth of information including:

- * deciding on a career;
- * labour market information;
- * job search;
- * tips on how to write a resume and effective cover letters;
- * job interview tips;
- * 10 essentials to get that job - An Employment Guide for Persons with Disabilities.

The website address is www.gov.on.ca/MBS/english/myontarioweb/looking4job.html. Our public access computer is available from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., weekdays, for your convenience.

Retail Sales Tax Rebate

Qualified ENERGY STAR® rated refrigerators, dishwashers and clothes washers sold on or after November 26, 2002 and on or before November 25, 2003 are eligible for a Retail Sales Tax rebate. Qualified Energy Star® rated freezers sold on or after January 1, 2003 are also eligible.

To find out if a specific appliance qualifies for this rebate, visit the Energy Star® website at: www.oeenrcan.gc.ca/energystar. To obtain a rebate form or for more information, please contact the Ministry of Finance Information Centre at 1-800-263-7965, visit the website at: www.oeenrcan.gc.ca/energystar or visit our office where application forms are available.

Introducing the Cottage Information Kit

Based on our most popular requests, we have put together a useful package of information focusing on summer life in the Haliburton Highlands. Here's a sample of what you will find in it:

- * The Shore Primer: A Cottager's Guide to a Healthy Waterfront
- * The Dock Primer: A Cottager's Guide to Waterfront Friendly Docks
- * Care and Maintenance of Sewage Disposal Systems
- * Information Package for Owners of Private Wells
- * Protection of Water Quality in Wells
- * Working Around Water? What you should know about fish habitat.
- * Seven Hints on Protecting Your Lake
- * Rules for Safe Burning
- * West Nile Virus: How to Protect Yourself and Your Family
- * Living with Black Bears in Ontario

Where To Find Us

For those who don't already know, the Government Information Centre is located on Hwy. 35, in Minden. We are housed in the same building as the Ministry of Natural Resources and Ontario Provincial Police. Our business hours are 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., Monday to Friday. You can reach us by calling 705-286-1521, ask for Linda or Gayle.

Commercial establishments can learn how new drinking water rules affect them

The Haliburton County Home Builders' Association and The Pump Shop, with special guests SGS Lakefield Research and Sterilight, are hosting a public information session regarding the Drinking Water Protection Regulation expected to be released in the near future by the Ontario Ministry of the Environment.

The information session will be held at the The Northern Lights Performing Arts Pavilion at the Haliburton High School on June 12 from 7:00 to 9 p.m.. During the meeting, the requirements for approval, treatment and monitoring of drinking water systems will be discussed.

This new regulation will apply to any commercial business supplying potable water to the public.

Pre-registration would be appreciated but is not mandatory. For information, please call Wade Woodward at 705-457-2638.

Smooth moves: Dorset Recreation Centre announces yoga classes with a gentle touch

DORSET NEWS

Melissa Alfano
705-766-0076
melalfano@hotmail.com

"We're all born under the same sky, but we don't all have the same horizon."

Konrad Alexander (1876-1967, German lawyer and statesman)

Lorne and Jean Greenaway would like to thank everyone for the cards, flowers, phone calls of good wishes, and the pleasure of seeing so many friends and neighbors at their 60th wedding anniversary open house.

Dorset yoga Classes for all levels with Allie Chisholm-Smith (Yoga Room) will begin on Friday, May 23 from 10 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. at the Dorset Recreation Centre. Allie's approach is a gentle practice using the breath and the ground, learning to work with gravity to move with ease. She says this approach is ideal for those with chronic pain or back problems. Call Allie at 789-0367 for more information or to register.

The Dorset Volunteer Fire Department Pig Roast being held on Saturday, May 24 is now sold out. For all those lucky ticket holders, the dinner starts at 6 p.m.

A hearing clinic will be held at the Dorset Recreation Centre on Monday, May 26. For an appointment or more information, please call 705-286-6001.

Haliburton County Home Support Services invites you to the 23rd Annual General Dinner Meeting on Thursday, May 29 at Birch Point Lodge. Tickets are $25. Registration begins at 4 p.m., AGM at 4:30 p.m., Social at 5:30 p.m. and Dinner is at 6 p.m. The guest speaker is Carole Edwards and everyone is welcome. To reserve your tickets, please call 705-457-2941.

Ask about the Spring Golf Classic to be held June 17, too.

This year, on Friday, May 30 and Saturday, May 31, the Huntsville Community Choir is doing something different for its annual spring concert. "A Sentimental Journey" will feature music from wartime, including many old favourites such as "The White Cliffs of Dover" and "Lilli Marlene." The choir has combed the area for authentic costumes. The military, Red Cross, even Rosie the Riveter will be well represented. Memorabilia will be on display, highlighting people from Muskoka-Parry Sound who served their country in both world wars.

The audience will be seated at tables of eight in a friendly cabaret setting. Refreshments will be served. This concert is reserved seating only and seats are going fast (as of May 5, already half sold). To reserve, call Diane Phillips 789-4310. Individual or group reservations are accepted. Location: Faith Baptist Church, Huntsville. Also, if you have uniforms, medals, letters or any other items from either of those time periods (1914-1918 or 1939-1945), which you would like to have displayed at the concert, call Arva Cawley at 789-5876.

All items will be secured and returned after the concert.

The Dorset Blooms are hosting an evening with Tim, the owner of Sandhill Nursery featuring container gardening and a question and answer period on Thursday, June 5 at 7 p.m. at the Dorset Recreation Centre. All are welcome.

Birthday wishes for May 18 to 24 go out to Luke Lock, Dave Moeller, Shirley MacKay and Happy Anniversary to Bill and Lorna Rawlins. Have a wonderful day!

H.H. Mix two cups of fabric softener with two cups water and store in a covered plastic container. Dip an old facecloth in the solution and use instead of a fabric softener dryer sheet.

Kinmount, Minden to host farmers' markets

This week's column has been written under considerable pressure. First has been the pressure of time with a two-day plus trip down to Scarborough cutting into my usual routine, and second the pressure of a 96 pound yellow lab who still suffers from separation anxiety, sleeping on my feet under the computer desk glad, to have us back. Yes Dorothy, be it Kinmount or Kansas, there's no place like home.

Beginning May 16 and continuing through the summer and fall, a Farmers' Market will be held every Friday in Kinmount; opening at 10 a.m. The eventual location will be the Railroad Station but until people become more familiar with this event watch for it on the main street downtown. Saturdays a Farmers' Market will be in Minden at McMahon Feeds'N Needs Store starting at 10 a.m.

From Maxine Snell, on behalf of the Haliburton County Fair Fund-raising Committee, comes a special note of appreciation. "The Haliburton County Fair's Wacky Show was a great success. We would like to thank everyone who supported this event. Thanks to the Hot Flashes for their entertainment. They were great. Also thanks to Lisa Gray for all the baking she did for our refreshments. We all had fun."

The Rotary Club of Minden and St. Paul's Anglican Church are joining their energies for a Giant Auction/Dinner on Saturday, June 7 at the Minden Community Centre. There will be good food, fellowship and prizes so call 286-3756 for more information/tickets, or purchase your tickets at Campbell's Garden Centre in Minden.

The Kinmount and Area Artisans Guild will hold its Spring Fling Bazaar on Saturday, June 14 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Kinmount Community Centre, located at County Roads 121 and 45 W. Members will have a variety of locally crafted items for your gift giving, along with home baking, lunch items and great door prizes. See you there.

Now here's the Scoring News with your usual reminder to keep busy and well.

Thursday, May 8 euchre at the Minden

Legion Branch 636: In the most lone hands column it was Helen Cox for the ladies and Norm Lee for the gents. High scores for ladies/men were recorded by Marie Dennie and John Deak, while Bess Cox and Michael Lucas took the lows. Other prize winners were Laura Carnegie, Pat Roussel, Helen Cox, Debbie Fisher, Kay Orr and Kevin Maloney.

Friday, May 9 bid euchre at Club 35, Halls Lake: Single moonshots went to Loretta Lamb and Sharon Evans, with Peter Farr getting three. Leading the pinks was Betty D'Ambrosio 270, followed by Olive Jones 261 and Jean Scadden 244. Peter Farr 326 took top spot for the white cards then Rob Evans 302 and David Lamb 267. Mary Pearson reports that it was Cliff Davison who uncovered the hidden score.

Friday, May 9 duplicate bridge at Echo Hills, Haliburton: In north/south, taking first place with 65% were Reet Murray and Bill Sandford, then in second with 55% Ev Morgan and Diane Boll. For east/west, top spot went to Stella McMillan and Vange Croucher 61% then Mayme Douglas partnered with Mike Collins next at 50%.

Saturday, May 10 bid euchre at Staanworth Terrace, Minden: In first was Margaret Fletcher 327, with June Branning 284 second and Jean Scadden 250 third. The hidden score holders were Pat Scadden, Milton Fletcher and Kevin Maloney, while moonshots landed on Iris Taylor, Kevin Maloney and Margaret Fletcher. Good wishes are sent out to Elli Langpohl and to Esther Lee [Haliburton Hospital] from their many friends at the Club.

Monday, May 12 cribbage at the Minden Legion Branch 636: Maxine Cross reports that Elva Paisley was first, with Pat Roussel second and Heather Cunningham third. Winners of the draws were Pat Roussel, Verna McDonald, Maxine Cross and Elva Paisley.

Monday, May 12 euchre at the Friendship Club, St. Paul's Anglican Church, Minden: For most lone hands, it was Lynda Jones for the ladies and Lorna Hicks representing the gents. In the high score department, for men/ladies Jesse Barlow and Pat Millard took the honours while the afternoon's lows went to Wayne Jones and Mabel Deacon. Draw winners were Lynda Jones and Joyce Ritchie.

Monday, May 12 euchre at Staanworth Terrace, Minden: High hand honours went to Elda Henderson with Cecil Smith winning for most lone hands, Loyas Henderson recording the low hands and Pearl Cowen taking home the special prize.

Monday, May 12 euchre at Club 35, Halls Lake: Harry Randell held the most lone hands with Marion Farr taking high score for the ladies and Olive Daniels for the gents. Low lady was Lila Goldsworthy, low man was Peter Farr and Jean Dutka took home the baloney. From Jean and all their many friends at Club 35 here is a special note. "Ken Wallace has moved away to Bracebridge. We had a Pot Luck Supper on May 5th for Ken and wife Shirley. We had a great turnout. We thank Ken for all his years of looking after our Club. He and Shirley will be missed greatly." On a personal note, I always looked forward to Ken's call on Tuesday mornings with the euchre report and send along best wishes. Bracebridge is most fortunate.

Monday, May 12 Kinmount Seniors bid euchre at the Kinmount Legion Branch 441: High score honours went to Jean Scadden, with welcome newcomer Phyllis Windsor second. The only two moonshots landed on Eileen Shepstone and Jim Corbett.

Tuesday, May 13 bid euchre at the Minden Legion Branch 636: In first place was Milton Fletcher, with Pat Roussel second and Wayne Jones tied with Charlie Richardson for third. In the moonshot department, Milton Fletcher, Isobel Cherwenka and Kevin Maloney had singles, while Margaret Fletcher had two. Hidden score holders were Pat Scadden and Mike Lucas.

Tuesday, May 13 contract bridge at Stanhope: Two small slams were taken by Helen Cassidy, with Len McNeice, and Betty Schlotter partnered with Betty Dicker.

THE CORPORATION OF THE COUNTY OF HALIBURTON

PUBLIC NOTICE

IN THE MATTER OF the Municipal Act: and
IN THE MATTER OF a proposed by-law at the Corporation of the County of Haliburton to stop up, close and convey to the adjoining landowner, a portion of abandoned roadbed, formerly Secondary Highway No. 121, situated in part of Lots 11 and 12 Concession III, within the geographic Township of Minden.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN pursuant to Section 34(1) of the Municipal Act, 2001, S.O. 2001, c25, as amended, that the Council of the Corporation of the County of Haliburton proposes to consider, and if deemed advisable, to pass at its meeting to be held in the Council Chamber of the Administration Building on Newcastle Street, in the Town of Minden, Ontario, on June 25, 2003, a by-law to stop up, close and convey a parcel of land more particularly described as follows:

Portion of abandoned roadbed, formerly a Secondary Highway known as Highway No. 121, situated in Part of Lots 11 and 12 Concession III in the geographic Township of Minden, designated as part No.'s 1-10 inclusive as shown on Plan 19R 7500 registered MARCH 4, 2003.

The plan of survey is available for inspection at the Roads Department Office, 3 Saint Germaine St., Minden, Ontario during regular office hours. (8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Monday to Friday).

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that before passing the said by-law at its meeting to be held as noted above, the Council of the County of Haliburton shall then and there hear in person, or by his counsel, solicitor or agent, any person who claims that his land will be prejudicially affected by the said by-law and who applies to be heard.

DATED at the Township of Minden Hills this 12th day of May, 2003.

Kawartha Conservation Authority will join nation-wide frog and toad monitoring program

The sudden appearance of amphibians soon after the ice melts from pond and marshes is one of nature's great spectacles. Throughout the spring months, the air is saturated with the peeps, trills and croaks of thousands of frogs and toads - all seeking mates and an opportunity to lay their eggs. These frog and toad calls provide the perfect opportunity to monitor the status of populations.

Throughout the spring of 2003 and in subsequent years, Kawartha Conservation will be conducting roadside surveys of frogs and toads throughout the watershed. This involves standing at the side of the road adjacent to wetland areas and recording the species and numbers of individuals heard within a three-minute period. When enough data is collected it should be possible to determine if frog and toad populations are rising or falling. The survey results will also contribute to broader provincial and national amphibian monitoring programs.

"This is important information because amphibians are good indicators of environmental health," said Ken Towle, an ecologist with the Conservation Authority. "Frogs, toads, and salamanders have very sensitive absorbent skin and as a result they are highly susceptible to pesticides and other pollutants. Studies have also demonstrated that amphibian eggs may be sensitive to increases in ultraviolet (UV) radiation. Some amphibians also require very particular types of high quality wetland and forest habitats. The decline or disappearance of sensitive species can therefore inform us about changing environmental conditions that may be less obvious than the outright loss of wetland habitat." In short, amphibians are like the proverbial canary in the coalmine - warning of impending trouble. Species, such as the tiny western Chorus Frog (whose call is like the sound made by running a finger along the teeth of a comb), appear to be in decline in Ontario. The familiar green Leopard Frog has all but disappeared in Alberta, and many individual frogs have been found with deformities in Minnesota. A contributing factor in the decline of amphibian populations may be roads. More roads combined with increased traffic have resulted in more mortality for frogs, toads and salamanders move to and from wetlands during wet weather.

Good stuff:

Kennisis Lake cottagers Thomas Loke-Lafleur and his sister, Kaitlin, dug into their pancakes at last Saturday's fly-in breakfast at Stanhope Airport

Landing some pancakes at annual Stanhope fly-in

by ANDY LLOYD
Times staff

People came for the pancakes but they stayed for the sausage at Stanhope Airport's annual pancake fly-in fundraiser on Saturday.

Bill Journeaux was serving up fresh flapjacks with sausage and a slice of watermelon all morning as hungry people lined up for breakfast. The pancake fly-in is one of three annual fly-in fundraiser events held at the air field, with money going to the airport committee. The committee decides how to use the funds in a way that benefits the community or the airport.

Several people flew-in for the breakfast on Saturday but the afternoon forecast was calling for stormy weather so some pilots had to stay away. It was possible to "drive-in" for the $4 breakfast, too, and many people did.

Seven-year-old Thomas Loke-Lafleur and his sister, six-year-old Kaitlin, came out to the event with their mother. These young Kennisis River cottagers enjoyed the pancakes and the chance to see some planes taking off and landing.

SCHOOL COUNCIL REPORT:

HHSS school council keeps up on activities

Spring has finally arrived with an abundance of activities to anticipate. The SAC is planning a repeat of the Battle of the Bands towards the end of May, and a car wash to raise prom funds. A very successful Volunteer Fair was held on May 6th in the Athletic Complex, involving 19 not-for-profit organizations.

April's School Council Meeting

Vice-Principal Irv Sternberg related his experience since the new Code of Conduct took effect. The incident level of bullying in the school has decreased. Positive results are also expected from a Peer Mentoring Program linking senior students with Grade 9s.

Healthy Snack Program

A Healthy Snack Program will be implemented at HHSS; it will be available to students as they come off buses and head for the first classes of the day.

Grade 10 Literacy Test

Any student who fails the Grade 10 Literacy Test will be required to take a Grade 12 literacy course in order to qualify to receive a high school certificate. This course will be a credit course.

Principal's Report

50th Anniversary: To be held on the weekend of May 15, 2004. Expected attendance will be approximately 2500 visitors.

Trips

The board has declared a temporary moratorium on all international trips.

Sears Festival

The drama team performed "Anger Begets" in Cambridge, at the All-Ontario Semi-Finals.

Next Meeting

May 20th at 7:00 PM in the Seminar Room. Traci Hubbert will be the guest speaker. As part of her presentation, she will speak of her involvement with TUNA ... the Trillium Lakelands United Nations Assembly. Come prepared for an interesting and informative evening. The meeting will begin at 7:00 PM, and end promptly at 9:00 PM.

440 THANK YOU

SINCERE APPRECIATION
goes out to the Minden Fire Department who attended to our cottage fire on Rackety Trail.
Your response time was awesome.
Jim and Doris Thew.

THE FAMILY OF the late Thelma Oldreive would like to thank everyone for their expressions of sympathy with regards to the recent loss of our mother. Our particular thanks to those special caregivers at Hyland Crest who helped make Mom's last months more peaceful. To Nancy Lee, we can't thank you enough for your extraordinary acts of kindness toward Mom and the rest of the family. Our appreciation to Kirsten Monk for all her help.

450 IN MEMORIAM

GREER, KENT - In loving memory.
We miss you more than words can say
Nothing takes the pain away Sitting here wiping away the tears
It's hard to believe it's been one year
I'd give the world if I could see you now
But I know we will someday, somehow.
We cherish the memories you left behind
We think about them all the time.
Our love for you is as strong as ever
We love Kent, can't wait till we're together.
Sadly missed by Aunt Kimmy,
Uncle Reid, little sister Paige.

GREER, KENT - In loving memory of a dear nephew and cousin, who passed away May 21, 2002.
Your presence we miss
Your memory we treasure
Loving you always,
Forgetting you never
With love from your Aunts,
Uncles & Cousins.

GREER, KENT - In loving memory of our dear son & brother who passed away May 21, 2002.
This month comes with sad regrets
It brings back a day we will never forget
The tears we shed, we can wipe away
But the ache in our hearts will forever stay.
Lovingly remembered and greatly missed Dad, Mom,
Philip & David.
